A TRIP TO MINT MUSEUM RANDOLPH
An introduction for first-time visitors, families, & visitors with developmental disabilities
Inside the museum there is art from around the world. Some of the art is thousands of years old, while some was made a few years ago. We will find many different types of art including paintings and clothing. We are going to look at works of art and talk about them.
We enter the museum by going up some steps and using the glass doors.

THE ATRIUM

When we enter the atrium, we will see a front desk, where we can learn more about the museum. If we are hungry, we can bring snacks and a drink and enjoy them in the atrium.
HELPFUL PEOPLE

THERE ARE PEOPLE IN THE MUSEUM WHO CAN HELP.

When we have questions, we can ask a Guest Services Associate, a Security Officer, or a Docent.

If we can’t find our family or friends, we should look for a Security Officer.
GETTING AROUND

We can use the stairs or an elevator to get to the museum galleries. There are restrooms and water fountains in the museum.
WHEN WE GO INTO THE GALLERIES, IT’S IMPORTANT TO REMEMBER THESE GUIDELINES:

• We always stay with our group, family, or friends when visiting the museum.
• We walk slowly.
• We do not touch the artwork or display cases. This will help keep the art safe and clean.
• We will not eat or drink.
We follow our docent around the museum to look at different works of art. We might sketch or write in the galleries. We might play games in front of a work of art.
We walk through the glass doors and down the stairs to get to the parking lot.
KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

THINGS TO REMEMBER

1. Please check the museum calendar to see if there’s anything happening that might affect your visit. The museum may be busy during special exhibitions and public events.

2. S.P.A.R.K. Explorer Packs can be checked out on a first-come, first-served basis at both museum locations. Packs contain everything visitors with autism and sensory needs might want to enhance their experience in the museum including: fidget keychains, wiggle seats, headphones, and weighted lap pads.

3. Tours can be arranged for both adult and children’s groups with varied disabilities. An educator will work with you to customize a visit that best suits the needs of your group. Contact Tour Program Coordinator, Julie Olson Anna, at 704-337-2043 or via email to arrange your group program.
