Delhom Service League Ceramics Affiliate of The Mint Museum

Support for the Mint, Camaraderie, and Lifelong Learning

The Delhom Service League (DSL) was founded in 1975 by M. Mellanay Delhom, who came to the Mint in 1967 with her historical ceramics collection. The organization – credited with boosting interest and funding for The Mint Museum’s vast ceramics collection – is a diverse group of artists, teachers, corporate leaders, doctors, collectors, and lifelong learners.

Over the last 40 years the focus of the group has expanded, but the mission is the same: to promote ceramic arts and education. Today the league presents nationally and internationally known speakers, and offers trips and tours to stimulate interest in ceramics.

Delhom Service League has funded the acquisition of numerous objects for the Museum’s ceramics collection and has funded catalogues for ceramics exhibitions. It also makes contributions to the acclaimed Delhom-Gambrell Reference Library for the decorative arts.

The signature fundraising event is Potters Market at the Mint. Since 2004 it has delighted ceramics collectors and pottery fans alike with the opportunity to get to know dozens of the state’s best potters. They shop the latest works in the rich tradition of North Carolina pottery—from mugs and teapots to oversized pots, contemporary art pottery and sculptures.

(Above) Delhom Service League has funded the exhibition catalogues for Portals to the Past in 2017, and for Classic Black, opening February 8, 2020.
